

Attorney

Brian J. Schulman

Resolution. As both a litigator and counselor, Brian is in the problem-solving business – whether that means acting as a zealous advocate in court or offering strategic advice on an internal business issue.

His dedication (i.e., his resolve) informs his guidance and his actions. Brian's litigation practice focuses on complex business disputes, including contract matters, fraud, securities law, shareholder disputes, real estate, financial services, and officer/director liability. He also serves as a private mediator and judge pro tempore. His ADR experience includes formal mediation training at the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution at Pepperdine University School of Law.
